FIFTY DOLLARS REWARD will be paid if a man named Gardner, or any other person, (not employed in my office) can be produced to whom I gave a verbal order for goods in J. A. Hall's store, March 17, 1853. If Gardner be not a myth, an imaginary entity, he will be forthcoming; but if that be his character, then Hall's memories are at fault, for he recollects all about it, as usual. I know nothing of the matter, except that I have had to pay Hall said trifle. If Gardner be not found, after due notice, I may be finally forced to believe that there is either a mistake or a fraud in Hall's said bill.
